Project description

Located in Belgrave Square, in a listed regency terrace, Canning House is a unique centre and meeting point, which aims to bring together and engage the Hispanic and Luso Brazilian world to Britain, through ideas, events, conferences, education and a vast library.

Llewelyn Davies was asked by the client to provide function spaces including auditorium for over 180 people, with a members lounge, improved entrance and reception, and an exhibition gallery space. The ambitious project is to deliver facilities for events, to create a focal point for the Latin American community of London, providing sustainably advice, and to represent the member countries technologies, materials, textiles and art.
